The Overview

OFFICIAL BROADCASTER

The FIFA World Cup™ is the absolute pinnacle of football, a sport that truly unites Australia's diverse communities, and as our ninth consecutive time broadcasting the tournament, Australians can again turn to SBS' trusted coverage and analysis of the event on television, radio, SBS On Demand and online this November and December.

As the official broadcaster of the 2022 FIFA World Cup Qatar™, SBS will present all 64 matches, along with comprehensive highlights and analysis of every match live and free for all Australian on television, online and SBS On Demand.

SBS Radio will also broadcast all 64 matches of the 2022 FIFA World Cup Qatar™, live and free via DAB digital radio, mobile and online. Matches will be broadcast in up to four languages simultaneously; English, Arabic and in languages of competing teams.

SBS will offer access to all live matches with Arabic commentary as simultaneous match streams available in SBS On Demand. The Arabic coverage will include "whistle to whistle" match coverage with Arabic commentary and graphics, beginning from the national anthems until the final whistle.

In 2022, SBS has again secured global exclusive commentary from the iconic 'voice of football' Martin Tyler, who will join respected football presenters Richard Bayliss and Niav Owens as part of this year's exclusive SBS broadcast. They will be joined by David Basheer who will commentate on all Socceroos matches and special studio guests and experts including Craig Foster, Mark Bosnich, and Sarah Walsh.

Qatar 2022™ will deliver extensive digital coverage via the SBS Sport Website (sbs.com.au/sport) offering an Interactive Match Centre plus highlight clips of all matches, exclusive interviews and opinion pieces, video extras, fixtures, stats and results.

Meanwhile, SBS On Demand will be the digital home of this year's event. Via the 'FIFA World Cup Hub' on SBS On Demand, Australians can live stream all 64 games and catch up on all match replays, short-form video extras, mini matches, and the daily highlights program and Classic Matches from previous tournaments, available to enjoy anytime and anywhere. Stay awake ahead of late games with SBS On Demand's premium content selection of more than 11,000 hours of international sport, movies, dramas and docs and more.

SBS is deeply passionate about football, believing its universal appeal can break down barriers without language. We know Aussies love to get behind sporting heroes and are confident the country will join us in supporting the Socceroos, and of course their other national teams, as they take on the best in the world in Qatar.

Fascinating, nail-biting, exciting, exhilarating and flat out terrifying. That's the FIFA World Cup™, and we wouldn't have it any other way.

The Analysis

Group A

Qatar

The hosts will embark on their first ever FIFA World Cup campaign after the success of their shock victory at the 2019 AFC Asian Cup. Spaniard Felix Sanchez's men have since enjoyed the luxury of missing out on the qualification process but were put to the test in last year's FIFA Arab Cup, where they finished semi-finalists.

Ecuador

After missing out in Russia 2018, Ecuador will return to the World Cup stage off the back of an impressive qualifying campaign, led by former West Ham star Enner Valencia, which saw them trump the likes of Colombia and Chile for a spot in the finals.

Senegal

The reigning Africa Cup of Nations champions will enter their second consecutive World Cup campaign full of confidence despite drawing a strong group, with Chelsea stars Edouard Mendy and Kalidou Koulibaly, as well as Bayern Munich and former Liverpool forward Sadio Mane, all set to appear.

Netherlands

The European heavyweights will return to the World Cup stage eager to continue the form of their undefeated run in the UEFA Nations League. Anchored by captain and Liverpool defender Virgil van Dijk, the renowned 3-4-1-2 formation of returning manager Louis Van Gaal will be home to stars across all areas of the park.

Group B

England

The Three Lions will be eager to go one better this time and reach the final in Qatar, but the side's inconsistent form is proving difficult to indicate how they will track at the 2022 finals. Tottenham Hotspur talisman Harry Kane is set to lead the line in Garth Southgate's 4-3-3 set-up, who will be hoping for a repeat of his captain's 12-goal showing from their qualifying success.

Iran

Asia's highest ranked team will be desperate to make it out of the group stage for the first time in their history, following narrow failures to do so at the previous two finals. Croatian manager Dragan Škočić will be relying on goals from star attacking pair Sardar Azmoun of Bayer Leverkusen and Porto's Mehdi Taremi for success in his maiden World Cup appearance as manager.

United States

The USA will be eager to return to the form which guided them to the Round of 16 in both 2010 and 2014 after missing out in Russia altogether. Led by native head coach Gregg Berhalter, the Americans will look to capitalise on what could be their strongest squad ever brought a World Cup with Chelsea starlet Christian Pulisic at the attacking fore.

Wales

In what will be their first appearance at a World Cup finals since 1958, former Real Madrid star Gareth Bale will lead Wales out onto the world stage. With their possession-heavy playing style and 4-3-3 formation, manager Rob Page will also be sure to utilise the talents of vice-captain Aaron Ramsey in midfield as well as young Fulham duo Daniel James and Harry Wilson.

Group C

Argentina

Ranked number three in the world, the Lionel Messi-led side's tactical style of sitting deep and looking to control possession paid off in spades as they went on to lift last year's Copa America trophy, which was soon followed by their qualification success where they were bested only by Brazil.

Saudi Arabia

The Saudis will make their second consecutive World Cup finals appearance eager to shake off the disappointment of their group-stage exit in the 2021 FIFA Arab Cup and arrest the form of their qualifiers, where they beat both Japan and Australia to the top spot.

Mexico

Gerardo Martino's eventful short time as Mexican head coach has been met with two agonising defeats to the USA in extra-time of both the CONCACAF Nations League and Gold Cup finals. Despite facing constant criticism of the team's playing style, Martino guided Mexico to Qatar with only Canada ahead of them on goal difference at the end of the qualifying campaign.

Poland

Led by talisman Robert Lewandowski, Poland's vertical playing style will be well suited to the pace of young wingers Nicola Zalewski and Sebastian Szymanski of Roma and Feyenoord respectively, as they operate under new manager Czesław Michniewicz's 4-4-2 formation.

The Analysis

Group D

France

The second half of 2022 has been far less fruitful for France, who have been rather inconsistent since their incredible World Cup campaign in Russia. Head coach Didier Deschamps will be looking to quell rumours of his departure in Qatar with a 4-4-2 formation spearheaded by strike duo Kylian Mbappe and Karim Benzema.

Australia

Australia's dramatic entry into the World Cup finals came after much scrutiny surrounding Graham Arnold's tactical style of heavy midfield rotation and patient build-up play centred around a 4-2-3-1 formation. The criticism was fuelled by an underwhelming qualification campaign which saw them drop points to Oman and lose key games at the back end of the qualifying phase.

Denmark

Coach Kasper Hareide has improved upon the formidable foundations Age Hareide established between 2015 to 2020, with a stubborn, defensive 4-3-3 making way for a fluid 3-4-3 that prioritises wing-backs like Joakim Maehle, and relying upon the engine and artistry of Pierre-Emile Hojbjerg and Christian Eriksen.

Tunisia

Qatar will mark Tunisia's sixth appearance on the global stage and second straight after bowing out of the group stage in Russia. Captain Youssef Msakni will lead the strong Tunisian contingent based in Middle Eastern countries such as Qatar, the same soil upon which Jalel Kadri's side made the FIFA Arab Cup final last year.

Group E

Spain

Spain have recently continued the form which catapulted them to first place in their qualifying group and to the semi-finals of the 2020 Euros. Currently thriving under their familiar 4-1-2-3 formation, Luis Enrique's star-studded side will be desperate to improve upon their last two World Cup performances, where they bowed out in the group stage and round of 16 respectively.

Costa Rica

Costa Rica's inconsistency of recent years has continued under new manager Luis Fernando Suárez, with disappointing exits in last year's CONCACAF Nations League and Gold Cup tournaments, and a qualification campaign which was saved by a late run of results and a narrow victory over New Zealand in the play-offs.

Germany

The Germans continued the curse of World Cup winners with their group stage exit in Russia but pose a genuine threat in Qatar with the recent appointment of Hansi Flick. Returning to their renowned 4-2-3-1 formation, Flick will look to use the incredible midfield depth of his squad to unlock the attacking abilities of the player in the tightly contested number nine position, whether it be Timo Werner or Serge Gnabry.

Japan

The Samurai Blues will look to repeat their surprise Round of 16 entry from 2018 with head coach Hajime Moriyasu, who took the reins from Akira Nishino after being his assistant in Russia. Despite the change in management, Japan's attacking style of play has not changed, although the 12 goals produced from their 10 third round AFC qualifiers would leave many questioning its effectiveness.

Group F

Belgium

Placing third in Russia 2018, Belgium will rely on the masterful dribbling abilities of veteran wingers Eden Hazard and Dries Mertens to set up the lone striker within their 3-4-3 formation, with long-time manager Roberto Martinez likely to have a tough time deciding between Romelu Lukaku and Michy Batshuayi.

Canada

One of the most enthralling stories to come out of the qualifying phase, Canada's extraordinary effort to make their first World Cup since 1986 arose from the nation's increasingly fanatical fanbase and manager John Herdman's unconventional but tactically effective 3-5-2 formation, powered by strikers Cyle Larin and Jonathan David.

Morocco

Morocco's managerial change a mere three months out from the tournament in Qatar could very well put a dent in their preparations for their second straight appearance at a World Cup finals, particularly after their strong effort in both qualifying and at the Africa Cup of Nations earlier this year.

Croatia

Boasting one of the strongest midfields in the world, Zlatko Dalic's men will once again be structured around a 4-3-3 or a variation of that formation, with the technical abilities of their ever-reliable captain and Ballon d'Or winner Luka Modric looking to steer the side beyond their incredible second-placed finish from Russia.

The Analysis

Group G

Brazil

The world's number one nation expectedly qualified for the tournament undefeated, with their attacking flair arising from their endless options up front which include focal point Neymar and Premier League stars Richarlison and Roberto Firmino. The Brazilians are likely to impress in Qatar with captain Thiago Silva holding down the defensive fort.

Serbia

Serbia look to be in top form heading into their second straight appearance at the World Cup finals, advancing directly to Qatar thanks to an eight-goal effort from talisman and Fulham star Aleksandar Mitrović which lifted them above Portugal in the final round of qualifying.

Switzerland

Known for being resolute in defence, Switzerland's 5-2-3 formation paid off in spades at the 2020 Euros as they knocked out World Cup winners France and fell just short of reaching the semi-finals. Anchored by captain Granit Xhaka in defensive midfield, head coach Murat Yakin will hope to see the reliability of veterans Xherdan Shaqiri and Haris Seferovic continue in attack.

Cameroon

After missing out in Russia 2018, Cameroon returns to the world stage off the back of a sensational play-off victory over Algeria. Under recently appointed manager Rigobert Song, the newfound stability of the Cameroonian midfield has given new life to its flamboyant attack, which includes captain Vincent Aboubakar and Bayern Munich veteran Eric Maxim Choupo-Moting.

Group H

Portugal

Boasting the attacking threats of Cristiano Ronaldo, Diogo Jota, Bruno Fernandes and Bernardo Silva, long-time manager Fernando Santos's trusty 4-2-3-1 formation should once again support the speed and dribbling abilities of his young attackers while allowing veteran defenders Pepe and Danilo Pereira to hold firm at the back.

Ghana

Despite finding form in their qualifiers and managing to prevent AFC heavyweights Nigeria from qualifying for Qatar, Ghana's managerial crisis and disastrous group stage exit from the Africa Cup of Nations tournament earlier this year have left cause for concern upon their chances for World Cup success.

Uruguay

The Uruguayan responded to their four straight qualifying losses from the back end of 2021 with as many wins to wrap up their qualification campaign. Led by veteran strikers Luis Suárez and Edinson Cavani, the South American side will be eager to continue their undefeated start to the calendar year by sealing a fourth consecutive escape from the group stage of the World Cup finals.

South Korea

Led by Premier League golden-boot winner Son Heung-Min, the third-highest ranked Asian nation will look to repeat the efforts of their shock 2-0 victory over reigning champions Germany in Russia, with their strength across all areas of the park exemplified through Wolverhampton midfielder Hwang Hee-chan and goalkeeper Jo Hyeon-woo.
